

Health Savings Account (HSA) Mistaken Contributions Form

Acknowledgment: Employer acknowledges and agrees that under Internal Revenue Service Code Section 223 (26 U.S.C. § 223) and related IRS regulation, the IRS allows the reversal of mistaken employer contributions to an employee's HSA in only the two limited instances ("mistaken employer contributions") described below.

- 1. Erroneously contributing more than the annual maximum statutory limit. If the employer contributed amounts that exceed the maximum annual contribution allowed under Code § 223(b), the employer may ask Aptia to return the erroneous excess contributions to the employer.
- 2. Mistake regarding eligibility to establish an HSA. If the employee on whose behalf the employer makes HSA contributions was never an HSA-eligible individual under Code § 223(c), the employer may ask the HSA administrator to return the contributions that the employer made to the employee's HSA for that calendar year.

An employer may not reverse contributions made during any previous taxable years. (If the employer does not recover the amounts by the end of the taxable year, the amounts must be included as gross income and wages on the employee's Form W-2 for the year in which the employer made the contributions.)

A private letter ruling included other situations that may be considered with regard to Employer and Payroll contributions, such as administrator error. While a letter of this type is not considered official guidance from the IRS like a regulation or a revenue ruling would be, it does provide the IRS' viewpoint on how the tax law is to be interpreted.

Employer hereby requests Aptia to return the mistaken employer contributions for the HSA participant(s) listed below. Note: All fields below must be completed for this form to be properly processed.
